

A.R. “TONY” AND MARIA J. SANCHEZ FAMILY FOUNDATION

EMPLOYED BUT UNDERINSURED

Last fall, Dr. Anshula Greene met a toddler who was having asthma issues. Her father, who was employed but struggled to make ends meet, could not afford to add his daughter to his insurance plan.

Thanks to the Sanchez Family Foundation's generous support, clinic staff were able to provide this little girl with the medication and nebulizer she needed.

A social worker at the clinic also assisted with the family's application for CHIP (Children's Health Insurance Program), and her father was relieved to learn that his daughter would be insured moving forward.
